Master the art of reading social cues and responding politely in this 2nd Grade Everyday Communication Quiz focused on verbal and non-verbal analysis.

---

1. You are explaining a game to a friend, but they keep looking at their watch and shifting their feet. How should you evaluate their body language?

- A. They are excited to start playing the game right now.
- B. They are bored or in a hurry to go somewhere else.
- C. They are listening closely to every word you say.
- D. They are practicing their balance and timing skills.

2. Your teacher is giving instructions, but your friend whispers a funny joke to you. What is the most responsible way to communicate in this scenario?

- A. Laugh loudly so your friend knows you liked the joke.
- B. Whisper a joke back to them immediately.
- C. Ignore the joke and keep eye contact with the teacher.
- D. Tell the teacher the joke so the whole class can laugh.

3. You disagree with a partner's idea for a group project. Which response shows you can evaluate a situation and communicate respectfully?

- A. That is the worst idea I have ever heard in my life.
- B. I see your point, but could we try adding my idea too?
- C. I'm going to tell the teacher you aren't helping.
- D. Fine, do it your way, but it's going to fail.

4. Imagine you are at a loud birthday party and need to tell your mom you are ready to leave. Why is your 'tone of voice' important here?

- A. You should whisper so no one else hears you.
- B. You should cry so she knows it is an emergency.
- C. You should speak firmly and clearly to be heard over the noise.
- D. You should use a silly voice to make the party more fun.

5. A new student joins your class. They are standing alone with their head down. What is the best way to initiate a conversation based on your analysis?

- A. Walk up and ask, 'Why are you being so sad today?'
- B. Smile, say hello, and ask if they want to play a game.
- C. Run past them quickly and shout 'Welcome!'
- D. Wait for them to come to you first to show you are polite.
