Answer Key: Bibliographic Hunting: A 3rd Grade Source Citation Quiz

Fact-checking, author identification, and title recognition for beginner researchers. This foundational assessment builds early integrity in non-fiction writing tasks.

1. If you are writing a report about the Moon, which of these is the most reliable place to find facts?

Answer: C) An encyclopedia article written by a scientist

Encyclopedias are written by experts and provide factual information, making them reliable sources for research.

2. True or False: When you use a fact from a book, you should tell your reader the name of the book you used.

Answer: A) True

Giving credit to the source helps your reader know where your information came from and shows you did real research.

3. The person who wrote the book is called the _____.

Answer: B) Author

The author is the individual responsible for writing the text, and their name is a key part of a citation.

4. You find a great fact in a book called 'The Life of Sea Turtles' by Elena Gomez. What is the title of this source?

Answer: C) The Life of Sea Turtles

The title is the specific name given to the book, which should be copied exactly when citing it.

5. When you write down words exactly as they appear in a book, you are using a _____.

Answer: C) Direct Quote

A direct quote uses the exact words from the source and requires quotation marks and a citation.

6. True or False: If you find information on the internet, you don't need to say which website it came from.

Name: _____ Date: _____

Answer: B) False

All sources, including websites, must be cited so readers can verify the information.

7. Which of these is a reason why we use citations in our school projects?

Answer: Standard B) To give credit to the person who did the work

Citations are used to act ethically and give credit to authors for their ideas and research.

8. To find the year a book was made, you look for the _____ date.

Answer: D) Copyright

The copyright date tells you when the book was published, which helps you know if the information is current.

9. True or False: Using someone else's words as your own without telling anyone is called plagiarism.

Answer: A) True

Plagiarism is taking credit for someone else's work, which is why learning to cite sources is so important.

10. Where is the best place to look for the author's name and the title of a book?

Answer: B) The title page

The title page at the beginning of the book contains the official title and the author's name for citation purposes.
