Answer Key: News Navigator's Quest: A 3rd Grade Current Events Challenge

Journalists in training track down local and global stories to solve how community choices impact the world around them.

1. If a town builds a new community garden to help neighbors grow vegetables, what kind of news issue is this?

Answer: B) A local community issue

Local issues are events that happen in a specific neighborhood or town and affect the people living directly there.

2. True or False: When we analyze a news story, we only look at the pictures and ignore the words.

Answer: B) False

Analyzing current events means we must look at both the text for facts and the images for context to understand the whole story.

3. A news story about two different countries signing a peace treaty to stop a war is an example of an _____ issue.

Answer: A) International

Events involving relationships or agreements between different nations are classified as international issues.

4. Why might a reporter interview three different people for a story about a new park being built?

Answer: B) To get different perspectives on the project

Good current events analysis involves looking at different points of view to understand how an event affects different people.

5. When a news station only tells one side of a story and ignores the other, this is called showing _____.

Answer: C) Bias

Bias occurs when a source favors one side or opinion over another instead of being neutral.

6. True or False: National news involves events that happen across an entire country, like a change in school holiday laws.

Answer: A) True

National issues affect people across a whole nation, rather than just one city or the whole world.

7. Which of these is a way students can help solve a local current event issue like litter in a neighborhood park?

Answer: B) Taking a vote to start a clean-up club

Analyzing news often leads to civic action, where citizens work together to solve problems in their community.

8. A scientist speaking on the news about a new medicine is considered an _____ source of information.

Answer: A) Expert

Using expert sources helps verify facts and ensures that the information being analyzed is accurate.

9. True or False: Reading news from many different websites can help you better understand a complex world event.

Answer: A) True

Comparing multiple sources is a key part of analysis because it helps you spot missing information.

10. If you hear that a new law might make healthy school lunches free for everyone, who is the MAIN group impacted?

Answer: B) Students and families

When analyzing news, it is important to identify the stakeholders—the people who will be most affected by the event.
