

Name: _____ Date: _____

Answer Key: Scribbles to Scripts: A Pre-K Writing Process Quiz

Young authors synthesize ideas by arranging messy drafts into meaningful storyboards, bridging the gap between imaginative play and formal composition.

---

1. You have a big idea for a story about a dragon. What is the very first thing an author does to plan their work?

Answer: B) Draw or talk about the idea

In the pre-writing or planning stage, young learners use oral language and sketching to visualize their narrative before attempting to encode text.

2. True or False: A 'rough draft' should look exactly like a finished library book.

Answer: B) False

Drafting is about content generation. Synthesis at this level involves understanding that initial attempts are meant to be messy and generative, not polished.

3. When you look at your drawing and decide to add a sun because the characters are at the beach, you are ____ your work.

Answer: C) Revising

Revision is a high-level cognitive task where the child evaluates their message and adds details to improve clarity and setting.

4. You finished your story about a space cat! What is the final step called when you show it to your friends?

Answer: B) Publishing

Publishing represents the transition from private work to public communication, helping children understand the social purpose of writing.

5. True or False: Authors sometimes change their minds and move pictures around to make a better story.

Answer: A) True

Name: _____ Date: _____

Rearranging elements is a complex reasoning skill (sequencing) that is vital during the revision phase of the writing process.

6. If you are fixing a 'backward J' or adding a period at the end of a sentence, which part of the process are you doing?

Answer: C) Editing

Editing focuses on the conventions of print. For advanced Pre-K, this includes letter orientation and basic punctuation awareness.

7. An author uses a ____ to organize their ideas before they start their final masterpiece.

Answer: B) Storyboard

Storyboarding is a scaffolded planning technique that helps students synthesize chronological events.

8. True or False: You should stop and fix every tiny mistake the moment you start your first draft.

Answer: B) False

Effective writers prioritize fluency during drafting. Stopping for every mistake can hinder the creative synthesis of ideas.

9. When an author asks a friend, 'Does my story make sense?', they are looking for ____ to improve their work.

Answer: B) Feedback

Seeking feedback is a collaborative stage that encourages students to view their writing through the lens of an audience.

10. Which of these is the best way to 'Publish' a Pre-K class book?

Answer: C) Binding it and putting it in the class library

Placing work in a library validates the student as an author and completes the multi-step reasoning cycle of the writing process.