1. Your teammate has the ball but two defenders are blocking them. You are standing all alone near the goal. What is the smartest thing to do?

Moving to an open space and communicating helps your team overcome a 'double-team' defense.

6. If you want to move the ball across the field very fast, the best strategy is to _____ it to a teammate instead of running with it.

Answer: B) Pass

The ball moves faster through the air or across the ground via a pass than a player can run.

7. During a timeout, the coach tells everyone to 'spread out.' Why is this a good strategy?

Using the 'spacing' strategy creates passing lanes and forces the defense to stretch out.

8. A good teammate only watches the ball and never looks at where their other teammates are standing.

Answer: B) False

Spatial awareness—looking at the whole field—is required for making tactical decisions.

9. In sports like hockey or soccer, the player who stays near the net to block shots is the _____, the last line of defense.

The goalkeeper has a specialized tactical role focused on shot-stopping and field organization.

10. The game is almost over and your team is losing by one point. What is the most effective way to try to win?
