Your Architect's Blueprint: Precision Drafting for 9th Grade

Challenge students to analyze structural shifts and rhetorical choices during the recursive stages of high-level academic writing and peer critique.

1. A writer is transitioning from an initial draft of a literary analysis on Toni Morrison's 'Beloved' to a second version. They decide to replace a chronological summary of the plot with a thematic organization focused on the psychological 'rememory.' This shift represents which cognitive process?

- A. Surface-level proofreading
- B. Substantive revision of structural logic
- C. Pre-writing brainstorming
- D. Formatting for publication

2. In a sophisticated writing process, the 'Drafting' phase should ideally be treated as a linear path where the writer never returns to the 'Planning' or research phase once sentences are being formed.

- A. True
- B. False

3. When a student changes a sentence from 'The character was sad' to 'A profound sense of isolation permeated the character's monologue,' they are primarily focused on ___ during the editing or late-stage revision phase.

- A. Expanding the physical word count
- B. Adhering to MLA citation standards
- C. Diction and rhetorical precision
- D. Changing the central thesis

4. You are peer-reviewing a synthesis essay regarding the influence of Stoicism on Marcus Aurelius's 'Meditations.' Which of the following critiques addresses the 'Revising' stage rather than the 'Editing' stage?

- A. The third paragraph contains three misplaced modifiers.
- B. The transition between the second and third sections is abrupt and lacks a logical bridge.
- C. You have misspelled 'philosophy' twice in the introduction.
- D. The font choice does not meet the specified academic guidelines.

5. The phase of the writing process where a student evaluates their work against a specific rubric and prepares it for a final audience—such as a school board or a literary magazine—is known as ___.

- A. Incubation
- B. Recursive looping
- C. Publishing
- D. Annotating

6. Annotating a primary source document like the 'Magna Carta' to identify rhetorical devices is a strategy typically utilized during the 'Planning' or 'Pre-writing' stage.

- A. True
- B. False

7. While drafting an argumentative response to Orwell's '1984,' a student realizes their thesis is no longer supported by the evidence they found. What is the most pedagogically sound next step?

- A. Finish the draft and ignore the contradiction.
- B. Correct the grammar in the introduction immediately.
- C. Return to the planning stage to pivot the thesis statement.
- D. Delete the entire essay and start a new topic.

8. A writer uses a 'Reverse Outline' after completing a full draft of a research paper on the Silk Road. This technique is specifically designed to evaluate ____.

- A. Spelling and punctuation
- B. Structural integrity and alignment
- C. The aesthetic quality of the cover page
- D. The speed of the drafting process

9. The primary goal of a 'Zero Draft' or 'Fast Draft' is to produce a flawless text that requires zero editing before submission.

- A. True
- B. False

10. In the context of peer review, which piece of feedback is considered 'formative assessment'?

- A. Assigning a grade of 85% to the paper.
- B. Noting that the conclusion doesn't mirror the introduction's ambition.
- C. Circling all the typos in the final printed copy.
- D. Ranking the paper against others in the class.
