Inception: Level 12 Global Rhetoric and Writing Mastery

Synthesize 10 high-stakes decisions regarding recursive drafting and rhetorical velocity in this advanced senior-level challenge.

1. A student utilizes a 'post-outline' after completing a 2,000-word draft of a literary analysis on Gabriel García Márquez. This specific meta-cognitive strategy is best categorized as which recursive phase?

- A. Substantive Revision
- B. Pre-writing
- C. Syntactic Editing
- D. Standardized Formatting

2. True or False: In advanced academic writing, the 'publishing' phase may include the defense of a thesis before a panel or submission to a peer-reviewed undergraduate journal.

- A. True
- B. False

3. During the drafting of a white paper on the ethical implications of CRISPR, a writer pauses to broaden their literature review. This movement back to research represents which characteristic of the writing process?

- A. Linear progression
- B. Recursivity
- C. Cognitive dissonance
- D. Formulaic drafting

4. When a writer shifts from a 'writer-based prose' focus to a 'reader-based prose' focus, they are primarily engaged in _____.

- A. Initial Brainstorming
- B. Global Revision
- C. Proofreading
- D. Free-writing

5. Which of the following activities represents 'Editing' rather than 'Revision' in the context of a scholarship application essay?

- A. Deleting a paragraph to improve the argumentative arc
- B. Refining the sentence structure to eliminate dangling modifiers
- C. Changing the thesis statement to reflect a new realization
- D. Adding a counter-argument to address audience bias

6. True or False: 'Zero drafting' is a pre-writing strategy meant to bypass the 'internal critic' by producing a rapid, unpolished stream of consciousness.

Name: _____ Date: _____

- A. True
- B. False

7. Addressing the 'rhetorical situation' (audience, purpose, and exigence) is a critical component of the _____ phase.

- A. Publishing
- B. Copy-editing
- C. Planning
- D. Formatting

8. In a peer-review session for a senior thesis, a classmate suggests that your use of 'epistrophe' is repetitive rather than emphatic. You are currently in which stage?

- A. Collaborative Drafting
- B. Incubation
- C. Formative Revision
- D. Diagnostic Planning

9. The process of 'incubation' in the writing process involves _____.

- A. Checking for typos
- B. Stepping away from the work to let ideas settle
- C. Reading the paper aloud to a peer
- D. Citing sources in MLA or APA format

10. True or False: Advanced writers typically complete the planning, drafting, and revising stages in a strictly fixed, chronological order.

- A. True
- B. False
